INTRODUCTION

Probate records are among the basic building blocks used in constructing a family tree. Wills, inventories, and administration accounts, all shed light on family relationships, occupations, home furnishings, and socio-economic status in the community.

The Calendar of Kent County Probate Records, 1680-1800, was compiled in 1944 by the then State Archivist, Leon deValinger, Jr., In his preface Mr. deValinger stated that the book is in fact a calendar of probate records, and does not contain complete abstracts of wills and administrations for the inhabitants of Kent County, Delaware.

The entries give the name of the deceased, the type of document (will or administration), dates of signing and probate, names of heirs, executors, administrators, and witnesses, followed by the volumes in the Archives and in the Register of Wills Office where the original document may be seen.

Because the abstracts are not complete, as Mr. deValinger himself pointed out, researchers are urged to consult the original volumes at the State Archives in Delaware.

Family historians may also wish to consult An Index to Kent County Probates, 1680-1825, compiled by the Delaware State Archives, in Dover, 1994. Proceeds from the sale of that book are being used to create additional finding aids to the holdings of the Delaware State Archives.

PREFACE

Those seeking social, economic, or genealogical data of Kent County will not find a richer source than its probate records. Knowing that the territory within the confines of the State of Delaware was ruled by the Swedes 1638-1655, the Dutch 1655-1664, the Duke of York 1664-1682, and the Penn Proprietors 1682-1776, one naturally questions why this volume begins with 1680 rather than an earlier date of the Swedish or Dutch regimes. The Swedish and Dutch settlers were subject to practically the same laws that were in effect in the homeland. In accordance with the legal procedure of that time wills could be made orally or in writing. In either case the will was made before a notary or some similar public judicial officer. As public recording of the wills was not required the notaries retained among their own papers the few wills that were made with the result that these records have since become scattered or lost. With the acquisition of the Delaware territory by the Duke of York the system did not change noticeably because the laws governing this territory were not published until 1676. There were still no probate records of this county as it was not separated from the jurisdiction of the Whorekill Court and created as St. Jones County until 1680. With the establishment of a separate county public records were ordered kept with the result that recorded probate records begin at this time. The transition from the government of the Duke of York to William Penn in 1682 brought a change of name from St. Jones to Kent County and better laws and regulations for recording probate records.

It should be borne in mind that the volume is a calendar and does not attempt to give a complete abstract of the wills and administration accounts. The calendar was selected as the form for publishing this material as it serves as a guide to the records available and supplies most of the information generally requested. It is recognized that a complete abstract would have enhanced the value of this work but it would also have curtailed considerably the period of years that could have been included within the scope of this volume.

All of the original probate records in the Hall of Records have been compared with the recorded copies in the Kent County Court House in an effort to obtain as complete and accurate a record as possible. When both the original record and the recorded copy are extant the Register of Wills liber and folio are cited as well as the Archives volume and page on which the original document is mounted.

All of the probate records are arranged in chronological order by the probate date of the wills and by the date of granting letters of administration in the case of intestate estates. By this means a fairly accurate estimate may be obtained of the death date of each decedent. In the absence of the date of probate or granting letters of administration, the date when the will was made or the settlement date of the administration account is used.

Only in proper names has the orthography been preserved. When more than one spelling of a name occurs, as it frequently does, or when an interpretation has been supplied the alternate spelling and the added information appears in brackets.

It should be remembered that the Gregorian Calendar was not adopted in Delaware and the other English colonies in America until 1752. Under the old Augustine Calendar the year began on March 25th and December was the tenth rather than the twelfth month. Thus a date appearing in the text as 1682/83 will indicate that the year 1682 is nearly terminated and that 1683 is approaching. Furthermore, the difference between the Augustine and Gregorian Calendars will explain why some probate records would appear to be probated before they were made. Dates recorded in the Quaker method of dating have been transposed to conform with either the Augustine or the Gregorian Calendars. For example, 12th of 10th month 1682 has been changed to December 12, 1682 according to the Augustine or Old Style Calendar.

Even more confusing to research workers than the calendar changes are the relationships contained in some of these early probate records. Frequently, step-father or step-mother is intended when the record states father-in-law or mother-in-law. In other instances the step-parents will be designated as father or mother. There are also instances when the word cousin is used instead of nephew and niece. The compiler has not attempted to interpret such inconsistencies but has presented them as they appear in the document.

The word "copy" in parentheses following the word "Will" indicates that the document in the files at the Hall of Records is not the original record. The original document being missing the hiatus has been filled with a contemporary manuscript, typed, or photostat copy. Unless thus indicated the probate record in the custody of the Public Archives Commission is the original document.

There are some wills in which the foreign residence of the testator causes the reader to wonder why such a probate record was included with those of Kent County. These foreign wills were recorded in this county either to show what disposition was made of the non-resident's property within the county or because he may have made a deathbed will while visiting here. A notable example of a foreign will is that of John Penn, The American, who as everyone knows did not die in Kent County, Delaware. Nevertheless, his will was probated here August 13, 1747, after being probated in England nearly a year earlier, because of his property in this county.

In the compilation of this text with its multiplicity of details every effort has been made to achieve accuracy. To this end much time has been spent in checking and rechecking. Despite these precautions there are undoubtedly some discrepancies that have been overlooked. We can only ask our readers to be understanding if such errors do occur.

Finally it should be pointed out that this volume could not have been produced if it had not been for the wholehearted support of the Public Archives Commissioners and the careful work of Mrs. Wallace Hufnal, Misses Naomi C. Urian, Elsie Bloth, Virginia E. Shaw, Mrs. Evelyn S. Griffin and Mrs. Priscilla W. Fleming in the preparation of this text for publication.

INDEX

All names of persons appearing in the text of the probate record abstracts have been alphabetized and included in this section. The original spelling has been retained throughout, except in cases when variations of names that are phonetically the same are grouped. In these cases the names in parentheses indicate the various spellings included in the same name group.

The Arabic numbers following each name in the index indicate the pages on which these names appear. Names of places, such as villages, towns and land tracts, have been excluded from this index.

The absence of a first or given name is indicated by three dots, as . . . .
